

Ecstatic Energy is collected and channeled by the controlling groups behind Mystical Capitalism in order to sustain the forward motion of the system. Without this continual ebb and flow of the energy, the structures cannot stand for any length of time. Accordingly, the accumulating and distributing locations are of critical importance to any study of the Mystical Capitalist framework.

Ecstatic Energy surpluses are found at locations having two major characteristics: a large crowd and an event to excite the crowd and manipulate its emotional state. In contemporary western civilization, these conditions are most often fulfilled at either a sporting event or a concert. Major league sports are among the largest consistent generators of Ecstatic Energy, and the stadiums of sport form the largest fixed array of Accumulators in existence. The regular and dependable nature of professional sports events in the creation of Ecstatic Energy is vital, and some of this importance can be seen in the massive advertising sponsorship provided by worldwide corporations.

Generating a massive amount of occult force is pointless if it there is no way to put it to use, not to mention dangerous. Thus, we turn to the utilization of Ecstatic Energy. While the relationship of Accumulators to the activities of Mystical Capitalism is not always immediately apparent until one considers the economics of operating the location as well as the harnessing of surplus Ecstatic Energy, Distributors are more obviously related to the matter at hand. A typical Distributor is the headquarters of a large company or a major subsidiary.

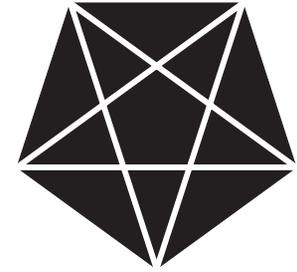

Just as with electricity, Ecstatic Energy suffers losses in transit, making the siting of Accumulators and Distributors crucial to the success or failure of the enterprise. The success or failure of various industries and conglomerates can be traced to the migration of Accumulators and the crowds necessary for their function.

Los Angeles County is home to many sites used for the accumulation and distribution of ecstatic energy in the service of Mystical Capitalism. This extraordinary concentration provides an accessible way to observe the daily mechanics of the Mystical Capitalist system from both ends.

This brochure details a suggested driving route starting at Sea and Space Explorations Summer Resort (the primary distribution location for this publication). On the first leg of the drive, you will visit five Distributors, spread across the northern and western portions of the county before heading south and east to visit the three Accumulators. Finally, the directions return you to the Summer Resort. Full addresses are provided in case you prefer alternate start or end locations or to abbreviate the tour to better fit your schedule.

The tour (as described) requires the better part of a day to complete if allowing reasonable time to observe each location as well as meal and rest breaks. While every attempt was made to provide a public transit-accessible version of the tour, the far-flung nature of several Distributors made public transit impractical, if not impossible without overnight accommodations.

Some of the Distributors are clear in their role in the economy (Countrywide Financial, KB Homes, Dole Foods) and others are less well known (Macerich, one of the nation's largest shopping center operators). Any sports fan will be instantly familiar with the Accumulators due to Los Angeles' storied sporting history. We encourage you to visit our website at <http://instituteformysticalcapitalism.com/latour> to read more about each location, as space in this publication is severely limited.
